

Episode #13,709--- Mick has just revealed, in the middle of Casey and Alison's wedding, that he and Alison slept together. Casey hurls himself at Mick and Mick's gun goes off again, but it doesn't hit anyone.

Outside, Margo's panicked to hear gun shots. She's calls Mick and tries to negotiate with him. Mick-as-James won't be negotiated with -- he takes Ali and Casey to another room, while everyone else must stay in the church upon pain of death. Mick sadistically ties up Alison and Casey so they can talk about her betrayal. Casey berates Ali for lying to him and making him feel like a fool. Ali tries to explain herself, but once they free themselves from Mick's bonds their priority becomes saving everyone, not resolving their fight. Ali convinces Mick that she'll run away with him and she leads him out of the church – with Casey following hot on their heels. Meanwhile, Margo's found a way into the church and rescues Barbara, Henry, Emily and the still bleeding Paul. Ali and Mick stop in an alley and Mick turns to her and she realizes he's repossessed his body back from James. Mick tells Ali he loves her, but he can't force her to leave. He wants her to come with him on her own free will. Ali can't answer before Casey arrives. Mick-as-James raises his gun to Casey, but Margo steps in and raises her own gun at Mick. Ali pleads with them all to not shoot. Mick tells Alison goodbye and he runs into the street where he's quickly struck by a large van.

At the hospital, Paul recuperates from his gunshot wound and Emily tells him that she doesn't need a child for them to be a family – she just needs him. Alison sees Mick into his room, and the nurse tells her Mick's chances of survival don't look good. Ali turns away from the room only to see Casey give her the cold shoulder and walk away from her with Margo and Tom. Ali's left in the hospital corridor in her bloody wedding gown.

Henry comforts Barbara at the Lakeview.