Will's blackmail attempt on EJ blows up in his face when EJ turns the tables on him. Later, as Sami's guilt weighs heavily on her, a new task brings Will a wave of guilt all his own. Does an innocent encounter make Will begin to sweat? If so, it has nothing to do with Will and Sami getting gifts from EJ. What does the dashing DiMera have up his sleeve this time?

Meanwhile, Bo and Hope continue to deal with their marital issues, as they remain on the case of pursuing the Alice mystery. Do they succeed in making headway with either situation?

On the other side of Salem, Jack puts his own demons aside and realizes Daniel's issues may be more important than his own. How will Jennifer respond to Jack's suddenly turning the other cheek? Later, Victor realizes when one door closes, another opens. Does Victor walk through it?

Shortly thereafter, Chad and Abigail turn to unlikely sources for relationship advice. From whom do they seek guidance? More importantly, what words of wisdom will be imparted? Keep your remote glued to Days of our Lives this week and see.
