

Ava has an interesting visitor

I have to say, Silas is just as funny and amusing as a ghost as he was alive. I just love the way he knows how to get under Ava's skin. I'm still not convinced that Ava killed Silas, but it sure is amusing to watch them interact.

I'm thinking that there was a third person at the apartment the day Silas was killed. Perhaps Nina got there right after the murder. Then, along came Ava. And props to Ava for snapping that photo of Nina holding the bloody murder weapon. Ava sure knows which side of her bread is buttered.

I really had a feeling Brad was married to a woman. But, wow! I sure didn't think that woman was Rosalie. That can't be Rosalie's big secret can it? A marriage is really not much of a secret. And thinking back it seemed like Rosalie was hiding something big. So I'm thinking there's much more to the pairing and the story.

Since Brad has some mob ties, I wonder if Rosalie does too. And maybe the marriage was some sort of mob fix up. I really think Rosalie has some tie to Sonny. Some are saying Rosalie is Sonny's daughter. I know what you're thinking – yuck – she slept with Michael. But Sonny and Michael aren't related by blood. So that may very well be. But if that's the case, who is Rosalie's mother?

In actor news, Lisa LoCicero (Olivia) is back from her nine week maternity leave. And here's a surprise - Rob Derringer will return as Sloane, which means that Grayson McCouch is out.
