

Who is Fluke?

Is Fluke really Bill Eckert? I don't believe that he is. It's all a bit too easy. And things are never that easy on a soap. It feels like we're being lead in the wrong direction.

We all saw Bill die in Luke's arms – remember? What possible explanation could there be? How did Bill survive? Unless Bill had a twin brother that nobody talked about. It's certainly possible, especially given that Luke and Bobbie suddenly have an older sister.

Bill didn't strike me as off his rocker back in the day. This man we call Fluke is definitely a few quarts low of a full tank. But who is he?

Is it possible that Luke had a twin brother? Maybe he was given up for adoption. Luke and Bobbie may not even have known there was a twin.

It's interesting to watch Jake and Carly get close. But here's what still bothers me – why doesn't anyone suspect that Jake is Jason? They're the same height after all. They both have blue eyes. Doesn't Jake's voice sound like Jason's voice? Don't Jake and Jason have the same hands? Why doesn't Carly put the puzzle together?

Think about it – Sam recognizes Jake as the man who grabbed her at the police station. Yet, she doesn't recognize Jake as the man she was once in love with. When Jake was holding Sam, I find it so hard to believe it didn't feel a little bit familiar. Even young Danny seems to know who Jake is. What's wrong with Sam? Why doesn't she see it?

General Hospital Check Up - Week of January 5, 2015

Written by Laurie Bedigian

Sunday, 11 January 2015 15:13

---

In actor news, Kristen Alderson (Kiki) is on her way out. Soap vet, Grayson McCouch is on board as the recast Agent Sloane. Kristina Wagner (Felicia) will join the cast of Hallmark's 'When Calls the Heart.' Kristina's former 'GH' co-star (and former husband), Jack Wagner is currently on the series.