

Will Laura keep Nikolas' secret?

Clearly Laura is torn. She now knows that Jake is Jason. The question is – how long will Laura keep that secret? I don't believe Laura will stay quiet for long. She knows that no matter how Nikolas spins it, the whole deception is just wrong. It's up to Jason to make his own decision. And in order to do that, he needs all the facts. At the very least, Jason will want a normal relationship with his sons. He doesn't have to go back to Sam. But in the end, the decision should be up to Jason.

I really believe that Jason would choose Elizabeth this time around. Jason doesn't feel connected to Sam. And Sam seems happy with Patrick. That's the bad part – the longer the secret is hidden, the more likely it is that Elizabeth could lose Jason. If she tells him the truth, he will probably understand. But if Jason finds out he's being deceived, it's over.

I didn't think Ric could sink any farther. Boy was I wrong. What he's doing to Nina is beyond cruel. And all in the name of money. I guess it's not so hard to believe, given what Ric once did to Carly. I still believe there's some good in Ric. But I think his dark side completely took over when he lost Elizabeth.

So Brad is married. I kind of figured. I bet he's married to a woman. It was probably some sort of arranged marriage.

In actor news, Tony Geary (Luke) will appear for the last time July 27. Watch Geary's "Nightline" interview here .
