

Well, soap fans, what can we say. The week of September 14, 2009 will go down in broadcast history as the week the longest-running program on the airwaves comes to an end. It is so sad to see it go, yet rewarding in knowing that for over 72 years, Guiding Light has inspired us, caused us to laugh and cry, made us more aware of social issues and strove, to its very last week to entertain us every afternoon.

With the last week packed with many surprises for long time fans and newbies alike, the powers that be at the soap are keeping very mum about revealing any sneak peek information. They want us all to tune in, and here at Soapdom.com, that's just what we are going to do and we encourage you to do the same.

However, we were able to dig up one sketchy preview. It has to do with Billy and Vanessa and a certain big day for them. Can you say wedding ceremony? We can and we will! The two will tie the knot this week.

Far as Guiding Light fans are concerned, why not enter the Guiding Light Sweepstakes? Each week you can answer a question for a chance to win a piece of Guiding Light's history. New prizes will be featured weekly. Click here for more information: http://www.cbs.com/daytime/guiding_light/, and be sure to not to miss a moment of Guiding Light this its final week.
