

Invalid Token

There are a few reasons why you may get a blank white page with the phrase "Invalid Token" at the top. If you are idle on the site for too long and you try to do some operation in the member area, you may get this page. Simply click the back button on your browser and log in again.

If you are logged in to a live session and you are using the Internet Explorer browser, you may get this "Invalid Token" page when you attempt to do various operations on the site, like take a poll. If you get this "Invalid Token" page, use your back button and IE will present you with a drop down message at the top of the browser window. The message will say:

"The previous webpage might require the following add on: "Office Data Provider for WBEM from Microsoft Corporation (unverified publisher). Click here to allow it to run."

Click where it tells you to click and run the add on. The polls and other functions will work from there on out.
