As previously reported on Soapdom.com in our One Life to Live Casting page , fan favorite Tonja Walker Davidson will return to play the character fans love to hate, Alex Olanov on ABC's "One Life to Live" on Thursday, NOVEMBER 17.

Davidson received a Daytime Emmy Award nomination for the role of Alex Olanov which she originated in 1990 and played until 1997. She was last seen as Alex in March of this year.

"For years I have been asked to bring the notorious Alex Olanov back to 'One Life to Live,' where she usually finds herself in the middle of a sinister plot," said Davidson. "I relish the opportunity to bring Alex back to OLTL with surprises that even shocked me."

So, what's Alex up to this time? We will have to wait in see. In the meantime...

Currently, Davidson hosts her own radio show, Straight Talk Live! With Tonja Walker in Fairfield, CT. She has also just starred in two indie films due out in 2012, Excuse Me for Living with Wayne Knight, Jerry Stiller and Christopher Lloyd, and My Dog the Space Traveler, with Chris Lemmon.

Some of her other enterprises include becoming a National Internet Safety Advocate thru non-profit Project Love/Purple AmericaR and uKnowKidsT. Project Love is a non-profit character education organization that empowers children to examine their choices, and learn how their choices impact others. Davidson's tenacity and talent have served her well and continue to do so as she rounds things up at OLTL for its eminent farewell.

Following her time on OLTL, Davidson created the Tonja Walker's Professional Performing Arts Studio as well as forming Tonja Walker Productions in 2005 which has successfully produced feature films. Her other ventures include writing children's books, creating TV shows, starring in numerous pilots for TV, mini-series, film, starring in a one woman show in NY, LA and Vegas
